Finding the Face of God in Those We Serve

A Look Back at Summer Mission Trips

Sometimes we need to live around people who are completely different from us before we can realize how much we have in common with them. That gift was among the many rewards for those who served in Atlanta's inner city and the dry Baja peninsula this past summer.

The inner city of Atlanta:

Accompanied by chaperones Nancy Ruh, director of Christian education, Randy Atkins and Brian Phelps, members of our middle and high school youth traveled to Atlanta, Georgia in June to work with the underserved populations of that community. The excursion was a program developed by the DOOR Ministries (Discovering Opportunities for Outreach and Reflection), a faith-based network of six cities that provides opportunities for service, learning and leadership development within the urban context.

During their six day adventure, participants worked in a community garden that serviced a food bank, a child care facility for at-risk children, a soup kitchen café, and a day care for adults with mental disabilities. The kids gardened, prepared and served food in the cafe, did arts and crafts projects and much more. "It was really something different every day," said Nancy. "The high schoolers especially loved playing with the kids and the kids loved playing with them."

Weaved throughout all of the activity, though, was sadness and self-reflection. Hearing the stories of people with mental illness who had been abandoned by their families had a profound impact on the group. Nancy noticed that some of the mentally-challenged residents, who are living in group homes on extremely limited financial means, are frequent cigarette smokers. Then she learned that the medications they take for their mental condition have side effects that cause nicotine addiction. "Often we make judgments about how people live their lives when we have no idea what their choices are," Nancy said. "This experience allowed us to see the face of God in people so disenfranchised and so different from us," she added. "Hopefully, they saw the face of God in us as well."

Parents of the mission trip attendees agree. Alana Miller, Megan and Caitlyn's mother, believes her daughters' experience in Atlanta was an important step in their faith journey. "Being able to give of themselves not only helped those in need, but helped them grow in their faith as well," she said, adding that the experience also allowed the girls to grow closer to their youth group and to get to know other youth groups from across the country. "The work they did was sometimes hot and tiresome and not always fun, but in the end, they came home with memories that will be with them throughout their lives."

4-Cents-per-Meal:

We will receive the monthly 4-Cents-per-Meal hunger offering during Worship on November 6.

Offering for World-wide Mission Workers

It has become the tradition of MPC to mark Christ the King Sunday with a $2.00 per member offering supporting the mission of Jesus Christ throughout all of the world.

Christ the King Sunday is the last Sunday before the new church year begins with the Season of Advent. This year it falls on Sunday, November 20. We will receive this offering during worship.

Stewardship Ministry Fair...

During our focus on Commitment to Christ 20/20, you have been invited to reflect on how your trust in Jesus Christ shapes your life and the commitments you make.

The final Sunday of our campaign will be November 6 and it will be a special celebration of our congregation's ministry. In worship, we will focus on the practice of serving in the way of Jesus. Following worship we will have a Ministry Fair, during which you will have the opportunity to honor your commitment to Christ by offering yourself to service through the congregation's ministry.

Each Ministry Team of the congregation will have a booth detailing their activities, as well as places where your service is needed. Plan now to be part of the celebration of the ways Massanutten joins boldly with the Spirit's work in the world and how God can use your time and talent to transform lives.

Stephen Ministry...

Life can change quickly and having someone to walk with through those changes can make a significant difference in the journey. The Stephen Ministry of Massanutten Presbyterian Church offers confidential, one-to-one Christian care to those who are experiencing difficult life circumstances.

Experiencing Advent and Christmas Through Art

This class will begin with an overview of major stylistic movements in the history of Western art as we look at how artists have interpreted images based on the Bible story. Beginning with week two, we will read Advent and Christmas texts from the Bible and study some of the greatest works of art inspired by the birth and adoration of Jesus. Handouts with visuals will be provided each week for discussion and study. Dietrich Maune will lead this class which meets in room 114, lower level.

Drawing on two books, Soul Feast by Marjorie Thompson and Practicing Our Faith by Dorothy Bass, this class will explore the question of bringing the meaningfulness of Christianity into one's life. A Look Back at Summer Mission Trips continued from cover:

Accommodations were Spartan. The participants, Doug Bryant, Megan Miller, Jonny Morris, Maddie Newkirk, Logan Phelps, Matt Atkins, Jacob Bales, Lauren Baylor, Caitlyn Miller, and Megan Phelps lived in a homeless shelter environment. Their mattresses were on the floor, side-by-side, their belongings piled up all around them. They used communal showers. “The kids rose to the occasion, as they always do,” said Nancy proudly. “Getting a feel for how other people live helped them to see how blessed they are.”

But perhaps what was most illuminating for the youth was realizing that the people they were serving were just like them, with the same needs and desires. They took the time to break down the barriers of mental illness and strip away the differences between themselves and those who are disadvantaged. “They realized you shouldn’t stereotype people just because they have certain disorders or issues,” Nancy added. “In the end we’re all the same.”

The Baja Peninsula:

More mission miracles took place one month later during a Shenandoah Presbytery trip to Baja, California. Participants Marcus and Doug Sensabaugh; Randy, Laura, Rachel and Matt Atkins; and Laura, Rebecca, Phillip and Mary Beth Holbrook traveled there in July to build houses for Mexican agriculture workers who had been recruited to the area. Having been promised homes which never materialize, they are forced to live in depressing “camps” or cardboard boxes. YWAM (Youth with a Mission) works in conjunction with the Baja and Shenandoah Presbyteries and a group of local missionaries to create livable structures and purchase simple furnishings for these workers and their families.

The construction projects also succeed in building life-altering relationships between the Mexican families and the missionaries, who often work side by side until the homes are completed. “What’s nice about having these relationships is that you can go back and see people you’ve built homes for and find that their kids are going to school and the whole family is thriving now.” said Nancy. “It’s very affirming.”

Rebecca Holbrook shares that sentiment. She helped to build a house for Lorentino and his family. Lorentino suffers from diabetes and walks with the aid of crutches. During the project, Bekah had the opportunity to learn about the family’s emotional, physical and financial hardships. “Using our hands to build their house, we changed a significant variable in their lives and may have shown them another view of Christianity – of humanity,” said Bekah. The Baja trip reminded her that being the body of Christ in the world is not easy. “By day four when we dedicated the house to Lorentino and his family we were tired, sore, and covered in dirt. But isn’t getting our hands dirty part of what we are called to do in this world?”

These are the valuable realizations that so often emerge from mission work. And while all mission projects can be faith-building, Nancy believes there is a lot of value in going away because of the trust-building and sense of community that develop among the participants. “Our church is really wonderful in its support for missions,” she said. “I think there is an understanding that these trips are not just about helping other people; they are transforming our lives as well. It’s often on these trips where people begin to hear God’s call.”

CWS Hygiene Kit Collection...Results!

As part of the 10th Anniversary of the September 11 attacks, the community at Sunnyside invited MPC to join them in a 'give-back' project. This project invited us to collect items for Church World Service Hygiene kits.

These kits are sent around the world when tragedies strike communities. The combined efforts of both the MPC and Sunnyside families resulted in the assembly of 235 kits. Many thanks to all who donated items or funds to purchase items for these kits.

A special thank you to Anita Landes, Activities Director at Sunnyside and Connie Miller, deacon from MPC for their 'extra-mile' efforts on this joint project!
